

Write now!

Begin your dream of becoming a writer.

Submissions Wanted for an upcoming anthology

Why do doctors want to write? Because we have so many stories to tell. Behind every exam room door is a patient with a story. Endless stories. Deeply personal and private stories shared only with a physician. While doctors are trained in objectivity, we can not turn off our emotions.

This anthology will share patient encounters while demonstrating the enormous responsibility physicians face in caring for the health of the whole person, not just the diagnosis.

Stories should be written from the physician's point of view, conveying your thoughts about the patient/situation/diagnosis. Allow subjectivity. Let the reader peer into life as a doctor.

"The Exam Room"

Submission Guidelines:

- Deadline: April 30, 2010
- Submit to drjuliado@yahoo.com
- Subject line of email should read: SUBMISSION: EXAM ROOM, (title of story)
- Nonfiction stories up to 7,500 words
- All types of stories considered: inspirational, funny, tragic, absurd, etc.
- If you do not receive confirmation upon receipt of submission within two weeks, please resubmit
- More than one story may be submitted
- Entry must be original and unpublished elsewhere
- Include name, address, phone and email at the top of each page
- Change patient names

For submissions and more information contact:

Dr. Julia Pewitt Kinder
drjuliado@yahoo.com
(573) 837-6432